Sol Shinder receives highest honour

Awards highlight Annual Meeting

By Cynthia Engel

A festive air pervaded the 52nd Annual Meeting of the Ottawa Jewish Community, held on Wednesday evening, June 11, as a record number of volunteers were recognized for their considerable contributions to the continuing welfare of the community.

The meeting was called to order following a cocktail hour and elegant dinner in the Auditorium of the Jewish Community Centre. Gerald Berger, President of the Jewish Community Council, presided.

The minutes of the June 12, 1985 Annual Meeting unanimously approved. Mr. Berger began the business of the meeting by congratulating Larry Hartman, General Chairman of the 1986 U.J.A. Campaign, and Sheila Hartman and Myra Presser, Co-Chairmen of Women's Division, on the completion of a very successful campaign. He also took advantage of the occasion to announce the appointment of Dan Kimmel as General Chairman of the 1987 U.J.A. Campaign.

Singled out for special mention was Dr. Charles Freedman, Chairman of the Long-Range Planning Committee. The Report of the Long-Range Planning Committee is contained, in its entirety, in the June his contributions to the Ottawa Jewish Community over his seven year tenure.

In recognition of their combined efforts on behalf of Soviet Jewry, Rabbi Basil Herring and Ruth Berger, Co-Chairmen of the Soviet Jewry Committee from 1980 to 1984, were presented with framed Soviet Jewry posters by Dr. Walter Hendelman, currently co-chairman of the Committee with Rabbi Dr. Reuven Bulka.

Shlachim Nehemia and Irene Dishon, returning to Israel after two and a half years in the Ottawa community, were presented with a piece of Eskimo sculpture on their departure.

Special Community Service Plaques were presented to three gentlemen, each of whom is retiring as long-standing chairmen of vital committees: Dr. Baruch Diena, Chairman of the Vaad Hakashruth, 1970-86; Mendel Good, Chairman of the Holocaust Committee, 1974-86; and Hyman Gould, Chairman of the Jewish Community Cemetery Committee, 1969-86. In a delightful aside, Dr. Diena impishly thanked "the government of Canada for giving me time to attend to the Vaad Hakashruth".

The highlight of the evening

Sol Shinder, Q.C. (left) accepts the Gilbert Greenberg Distinguished Service Award from Robert and Marion Greenberg as Gerald Berger and Stephen Victor join in the applause.

Kadisha. Lawrence Freiman was the recipient in 1981. He was followed by Hyman Gould in 1982; Thomas Sachs in 1983; Norman Zagerman in 1984 and the late Hy Hochberg in 1985. The bronze tablet bearing their names hangs in the main foyer of the Jewish Community Centre.

Introducing the honouree, Stephen Victor, First Vice-President of the Council, standing in for the Chairman of the Selection Committee, Dr. Harvey Lithwick, announced that Sol Shinder was the unanimous choice as the 1986 recipient of the Award. Enumerating the various positions of community responsibility which Mr. Shinder has shouldered over the years, Mr. Victor stated, "Jewish life in our city and the State of Israel have been strengthened because of Sol Shinder."

"He has," Mr. Victor said, "left an indelible mark on our community."

In responding to the honour, Mr. Shinder recalled his close association with the late Gilbert Greenberg and described as humbling the experience of having his name added to the list of previous recipients — "legendary figures in our community."

Mr. Shinder singled out his wife Zelaine, "without whose understanding of the same causes of pursuing the goal of a better Jewish community in Ottawa and Israel I would not have been able to have devoted the time I did". He noted with pride that, despite their father's frequent absence from home, his sons have developed into fine young men.

The honouree credited his parents for being excellent role models for their family and thanked his partners — current and past — for their understanding and encouragement.

Mr. Shinder took time to remember the late Executive Vice-President Hy Hochberg, who, he said, "had a profound influence on me", and thanked his "other mentor", Norman Zagerman.

Looking to the future of the community, Mr. Shinder noted that, based on the results of the Long-Range Planning Report, both levels of participation and commitment to fund-raising must be increased in order to be in a position to deliver the kind and quality of service which "our community needs and deserves".

He listed four overriding responsibilities he feels the community has: a commitment to sustaining the survival of the State of Israel; a commitment to educating young people with the best available system of education in a strong community school; the support of the Jewish Community Centre and JSU-Hillel to be able to reach teens and university students; and a commitment to our elders.

Mr. Shinder concluded his remarks with a tri-pronged appeal: increased support to U.J.A.; the provision of a lasting legacy to the community through the amending of Wills to provide for a bequest to the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation; and investment in Israel through the purchase of State of Israel Bonds.

His remarks were met with a standing ovation.

The Chairman adjourned the meeting with special thanks to Myra Aronson, Arrangements Chairman for the evening.

Officers who will serve with Mr. Berger this year are: Stephen Victor, Q.C., First Vice-President; Dr. Eli Rabin, Second Vice-President; Mrs. Simone Goldberg, Treasurer; and Lorry Greenberg, Honorary Secretary.

Rabbi Basil Herring and Ruth Berger flanked by Dr. Walter Hendelman (left) and Gerald Berger display their awards for past co-chairmanship of the Soviet Jewry Committee.

6 Special Edition of the Bulletin.

Mr. Berger commended the chairmen of the various committees for their input over the past year, and announced that the Planning, Priorities and Budget Committee recently met to make its final decision on allocations to agencies. The results of that meeting will be published shortly.

The first honouree, Rabbi Dr. Basil F. Herring, spiritual leader of Congregation Beth Shalom who is leaving to assume a pulpit in Atlantic Beach, New York, was presented with a Community Service Plaque in recognition of

was the presentation to Sol Shinder, Q.C. of the Gilbert Greenberg Distinguished Service Award. Representing the family were two children of the late Gilbert Greenberg, Marion and Robert, who made the presentation.

The coveted award, which bears the name of Past President Gilbert Greenberg who exemplified the qualities of leadership which the award seeks to recognize each year, is the highest tribute the Jewish community can give to an individual for exceptional service over the course of many years.

Initiated in 1980, it was first presented to the Chevra

Bat Dor

On Monday, June 2, the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation sponsored an evening in the Opera of the National Arts Centre featuring the Bat Dor Dance Company of Israel.

More than 1500 people attended the performance of modern ballet, which received excellent reviews in the Ottawa Citizen as well as in the Montreal and Toronto newspapers for their performances in those cities.

The performance was followed by a reception in the foyer which was decorated with balloons for the occasion. The dancers mingled with the guests and signed autographs while a trio played lively music in the background.

Irving Greenberg, President of the Foundation, welcomed those present and paid tribute to the founding families of the Foundation and asked representatives of those families to light candles on the Bar Mitzvah cake, symbolizing the 13th birthday of the Foundation. After this brief ceremony, everyone was invited to enjoy cake and ice cream.

I am pleased to list the names of the founding families and add my thanks for their foresight in helping to establish this vehicle which will ensure the future of our community for years to come. Their names follow, in alphabetical order: Hy Bessin Family; Alex Belcherman Family; the late Michael Freedman; Gilbert Greenberg Family; Hy Harris; David Loeb; Abe Palmer; Harold Shenkman; Bernard Shinder; Hyman Soloway; Samuel Teller; Herbert and Norman Zagerman.

In addition, I would extend my compliments to those who helped make the evening a success. Evelyn Greenberg, Ruth Calof, and Edic Koranyi were the driving forces on the administrative end and Simone Goldberg arranged the celebration which followed.

On Kosher Catering

Over the years the Jewish Community of Ottawa has been well served by local kosher caterers Jack Edelson and Jack Smith. In addition, prepared kosher foods have been available from the Lichtensteins of United Kosher Meat & Deli.

These three sources provided food for a multitude of luncheon and dinner meetings as well as weddings, Bar Mitzvahs or any other type of gathering. The food was prepared on the premises of one of the local congregations, in the J.C.C. facility or at the butcher shop. From time to time, special functions such as the Annual Canada-Israel Committee Parliamentary Conference and Dinner were planned at local hotels. This was usually due to lack of sufficient space in kosher facilities. On occasion, there have been kosher parties at local hotels for weddings or Bar Mitzvahs.

In either instance, the special public function or the private party, there were two options of ensuring kashruth and both ways have been utilized. One way is to kosher the kitchen of the hotel, a huge and time-consuming task, and then to provide the supervision of the cooking. An alternate method, more widely used, is to prepare the food in a supervised kosher kitchen (a congregation or the J.C.C.), to be served in the hotel using rented kosher dishes, cutlery, etc. Both these methods become costly, since one must pay the caterer and the hotel and absorb the rental charges.

During the past year we have been approached by three local hotels, each with slightly different propositions. One hotel wishes to offer us a kosher kitchen facility. They are prepared to expend all the necessary funds to provide whatever is required on dishes, utensils, cutlery and supervision by a Mashgiach. In addition, they have agreed to purchase kosher products locally, whenever possible, and to give the client a choice between the hotel chef or one of the local kosher caterers. Obviously, if the kosher caterer is involved, the hotel would have to charge a service fee for use of their facility and equipment.

A second hotel wishes to be licensed to do kosher catering in our facilities or in private homes and would be prepared to bear the price of providing a kosher kitchen.

The third hotel has received a Head Office directive that outside caterers (kosher or otherwise) will no longer be allowed to operate on their premises. This hotel is seeking permission to hold the one or two major kosher functions that are normally booked there. They are prepared to have their kitchens kashered and to accept proper supervision for such occasions.

These issues were correctly addressed to Dr. Baruch Dina, Chairman of the Vaad Hakashruth. Dr. Dina plans to move to Toronto after his retirement at the end of August and time did not permit the resolution of this issue before he left.

It was also suggested that this matter has such far-reaching implications that it should be brought to the community-at-large prior to being brought forward to the Vaad Trustees for a decision.

To that end, I have asked Mr. Joseph Lief, Q.C. a former president of the Vaad, to set out the issues for the Trustees. To assist him in this task, I invite your comments, either by way of correspondence directed to me, or via Letters to the Editor, or by completion of the form which also appears on this page, which should then be mailed to the Editor. Please respond. It will help us to understand your needs and desires before we make our decision in this regard.

Two spearhead JNF Campaign and September 24 Negev Dinner

Harry Goldstein, Jewish National Fund Chairman is pleased to announce the appointment of Bob Gencher as Campaign Chairman and Sol Shinder as Dinner Chairman for the 1986 Negev Dinner honouring Rabbi Reuven Bulka. Both are active, well known and respected members of the Ottawa Jewish Community.

Bob Gencher has been actively involved on the Jewish National Fund Executive for a number of years. As well, his energies have been directed to Habonim-Dror, B'nai B'rith, UJA and Knights of Pythias. Having visited Israel 14 times, Bob continues to marvel at the great strides in development which continue to take place. Bob and his wife, Leah, are the parents of five sons.

Sol Shinder's many involvements include those of past president of the Jewish Community Council, past chairman of UJA, Planning and Priorities Budget Committee, past chairman of the Jewish Community Foundation and Campaign Co-Chairman of the Jewish Community Campus Building Fund. Currently, he is the 1986 Campaign Chairman for the State of Israel Bonds. On June 11, he was awarded the Gilbert Greenberg

Bob Gencher
Campaign Chairman

Distinguished Service Award for 1986. Sol and his wife, Zelaine, have two sons.

The 1986 Negev Dinner which will honour Rabbi Reuven Bulka will take place on Wednesday, September 24 at the Jewish Community Centre. Rabbi Bulka has made his presence felt both here as well as internationally. In addition to leading Congregation Machzikei Hadas since 1967, Rabbi Bulka has been active in and provides input to many of the standing committees within the community. Presently, he is Chairman of the Rabbinic Cabinet for State of Israel Bonds and Co-Chairman of the Ottawa Soviet Jewry Committee. Rabbi Bulka has been chosen as honoree for the 1986 Negev Dinner in recognition of his untiring involvement in the Ottawa Jewish Community as well as the integral role he plays in his devotion to Israel.

Sol Shinder
Dinner Chairman

By participating in the Negev Dinner, the Ottawa Jewish Community can honour Rabbi Bulka and at the same time, further the work of the Jewish National Fund. Today, JNF continues its work of developing the Galil in the north, redeeming the Negev in the south and the newest effort — clothing a united Jerusalem in a mantle of green — everywhere reinforcing the infrastructure of the Jewish State.

For further information on dinner participation, contact the JNF office at 230-9047.

New book deflates a multitude of misconceptions about Jews

The myth that Jewish people have a special talent for making money and that all Jews are wealthy is a common misconception that a California writing team has discovered in researching their new book, Clues About Jews for People Who Aren't.

Sidney J. Jacobs and Betty J. Jacobs maintain that the caricature of the money-grubbing Jew must be debunked together with other illusions growing out of naive ignorance or barely-concealed anti-Semitism.

Their book tackles answers to what they describe as "gutty questions asked in public and those whispered in private about Jews."

Deflated in the volume are popularly-held convictions about Jewish clannishness, alleged Jewish feelings of superiority as a "chosen people," Jews charged at the same time with being communists and international bankers, and allegations of dual loyalty against American Jews interested in the State of Israel.

To shatter the "Jews and money" stereotype, Sidney J. Jacobs, rabbi and co-author of Clues About Jews for People Who Aren't, pointed out that one of every five Jews in the United States lives at the poverty level.

"Statistics reveal that 13 percent of the slightly more than 500,000 Jewish residents of Los Angeles have an annual income of less than $6,000," Jacobs said. "Another 8 percent exists on $6,000 to $9,000 a year."

Co-author Betty J. Jacobs, professor of communications at West Los Angeles College, indicated that there are in excess of 1,000 homeless Jews wandering the streets of Los Angeles.

Similar statistics are true of other major cities, he added, citing as an example the more than 144,000 Jews living below Federal poverty guidelines in New York City.

The husband and wife writing team explained that the "rich Jew" myth is advanced initially by anti-Semites and often perpetuated by motion picture stereotypes and anti-Jewish jokes.

Anti-Semites have nurtured the canard that Jews plot the world's finances, according to the authors of Clues. In reality, they point out, a 1983 survey conducted by the attorney general of New York State revealed that seven of New York City's biggest banks had almost no Jews in top executive positions, although Jews constitute 50 percent of that city's college graduates.

Similarly, they reported, a 1976 study in Massachusetts indicated that only 1.1 percent of bank executive posts in the commonwealth were held by Jews.

Questionnaire on Kosher Kitchen Facilities

1. I prefer the status quo — i.e., kosher facilities in Congregations, Jewish Community Centre and Butcher Shop.
2. I believe we should allow hotels to provide kosher facilities at their cost.
3. I believe we should only allow kosher catering in hotels with our local caterers.
4. Other. Explain.

Commentary

by Cynthia Engel
Editor

Summertime — when the livin' is easy, and the Bulletin slows down to one issue per month. Stuff to gladden this dedicated editor's heart.

As is our customary wont — because the majority of our faithful readers are out doing good things like swimming and sailing and travelling and just taking advantage of the great weather — this office will gear down for the hot spell and produce one issue on July 25 (deadline Wednesday, July 9) and one issue on August 22 (deadline Wednesday, August 6). But fear not, we shall return to our regular bi-monthly schedule beginning with the first issue on September 5 (deadline Wednesday, August 20).

This final June issue serves to pull the year together, with the front page report on the Annual Meeting, four pages of photographs from the recent highly successful Mission to Israel, the camera's eye-view of State of Israel Bonds Dinner and Fashion Show and a pictorial review of the Bat Dor evening. The past ten months in this community have been busy ones for all of us, and no doubt everyone needs to take the coming summer to shift into low for just a little while and, as the kids say, hang loose.

We would like to thank our advertisers for choosing the Bulletin as a vehicle for disseminating information about their products and services. This past year quite a number of people have opted for the pages of the Bulletin to reach the Jewish reading public — and have reported back to us that the results have been extremely satisfactory. Needless to say, we were delighted to hear those affirmative comments, and would urge any and everyone with a message that needs conveying to advertise with us. Bulletin ads do get results!

As we have in the past, this year we will again be carrying Yom Tov greetings in the OJB&R. These can be selected from the samples which will appear in the July issue of the paper, so please watch for the advertisement. More and more readers find this the best way to reach family and friends at this very special time of year. Please, do not wait until zero hour to make a choice and send it in. The printers have set a deadline and they are adamant about adhering to it. So, when the ad appears next month, make it a priority!

This time the Commentary will be short and sweet — but just long enough to wish each and everyone out there a wonderful and carefree sun-drenched two months. There's a long, cold winter behind us — and another one coming up, so enjoy.

Have a happy summer!

Urge gov't to bar Waldheim

Canadian Jewish Congress has issued the following letter to the Government of Canada urging the exclusion of newly-elected Austrian President Kurt Waldheim from Canada. The letter addressed to Rt. Hon. Joe Clark, Secretary of State for External Affairs and Hon. Flora MacDonald, Minister of Employment and Immigration, reads as follows:

The election of Kurt Waldheim as president of Austria is of the gravest concern to the Jewish community. Waldheim is listed by the United Nations as a category (A) war criminal who has consistently lied about his Nazi past. Waldheim stands accused as an accessory to mass murder. He was involved in savagery as a member of Nazi occupation forces of Yugoslavia and Greece, where thousands of Jews were sent to their destruction when he served on the staff of General Loehr, who was hanged as a war criminal for atrocities committed during Balkan occupation.

Waldheim's presence amongst us would constitute an insult to the victims of Nazism and those who fought against it, and indeed, would be morally repugnant to all Canadians. We ask that Canada inform the Austrian government that Waldheim is inadmissible to and unwelcome in this country."

The signatories to the letter are: Dorothy Reisman, President; Mira Koschitzky, Chairman, National Executive; Alan Rose, Executive Vice President.

Show will air

Russian speaking Canadians who reside in Ottawa will present a cultural program of interest to all Canadians on Channel 12 on Sunday, July 6 at 2:30 p.m. and Monday, July 7 at 10:00 p.m.

The Manor

By Isaac Bashevis Singer

Dell Paperback, 390 pages

Isaac Bashevis Singer, Nobel Laureate for literature in 1978, is known to readers mostly for his short fiction.

In 1981, Farrar Strauss and Giroux published his collected stories which were selected from more than a hundred he had authored. Since this publication, many more stories have appeared in prominent magazines, most noteworthy, The New Yorker.

Bashevis Singer's stories have also appeared in many anthologies on this continent and abroad. One can hardly pick up a collection of contemporary literature without stumbling on a Singer story.

But how many readers take time to read and re-read Singer's novels? For this reviewer, The Manor is a re-read, a novel I have picked up on several occasions to savour its richness and to remember how the best of Singer's short fiction techniques live in this longer work.

The Manor, a family saga, reads like a series of linked short stories. Protagonist, Calman Jacoby quickly slips in to the background while his second wife, Clara Kaminer and the children of Calman's first marriage, Mirale, Shaindel and Miriam Liebe take over the book.

Singer is so skilled that he gets away with this complicated structure. He even manages to trace the life of the Polish Count who was the previous owner of The Manor, and the lives of his children Lucian and Felicia.

Comparing the longer works with Singer's short stories, one sees that Singer's success is due to the episodic treatment of his rendering of events. What happens at each moment in terms of the novel's time, invites consequences that will affect both the moment and the entire book. The careful reader cannot predict beyond the moment which is complete in itself, yet he is enticed to read on. On the simplest level, one could say, The Manor reads like a literary soap opera. Both The Manor and its sequel, The Estate, are ideal summer reading or re-reading.

Food for Thought: This September I continue to teach Anglo-Jewish Writing in Canada at Carleton University. I had planned to teach the same survey course of 22 new and established authors, but I have had a request to study four authors' work in depth, with at least two making guest appearances. Please feel free to call me, Sharon Drache (235-2192) or Elliott Gluck (820-6930) if you are interested in either course. The sooner, the better, so we can plan ahead.

Green Grass Right Here

By Rabbi Reuven P. Bulka

Congregation Machzikei Hadas

A parent accompanied the young child who was about to have minor surgery. (Minor surgery, for those who are interested, is surgery undergone by others. Zeine surgery is minor; meine surgery is major.) The surgeon, seeing the parent anxious and worried, offered the calming assurance that all would be OK. In fact, the surgery was so simple, said the doctor, that only a local anesthetic would be needed. "What!," exclaimed the irate parent. "For my child, local is not good enough. I want something imported!"

What is better, local or imported? What is preferable, the same old stuff, or something new? This is a perennial question, reverberations of which are being felt right here in our own Ottawa Jewish community.

Why settle for the local meat, we are told, when we can get meat under the banner of the most trusted name in Kashruth in Canada, when the quality of meat meeting the standards of another city, is now, glory be, finally available in Ottawa. I guess few people are aware that much of the meat sold in Montreal, for example, is actually prepared here in Ottawa. At the same time, they probably are not aware that the meat prepared at United Kosher is actually glatt.

Since being a Rabbi is a people-oriented activity, I often hear reactions of people reflecting their tastes and experiences. On the same day, I can hear complaints from people who are sick and tired of the locally catered food, and plaudits from others who attended out-of-town events and remark at how superior the locally catered food really is!

I can understand the feelings of those who believe that the grass is greener in Montreal, Toronto, or New York. (Truth be told, there really is not that much grass in New York.) I recall when I first came here, nearly nineteen years ago, that for a few months I ran daily to get the New York newspapers, as if that was the only source for legitimate news. But eventually I learned that Canadian is not that bad, that it indeed compares favourably (Canadian spelling) with imports from south of the border.

The same, it may be said, is true of Ottawa relative to the major cities in Canada. We may not fully realize it, but we are blessed with resources here that the envy, and legitimately so, of others.

We have a coordinated and integrated community under the Vaad Ha'Ir that is a model of cohesiveness. Let no one minimize the importance of a united community. Without a community working together in harmony and cooperation, our present and future are in jeopardy. Whatever we have in a meaningful way, is founded on community.

We have a Chevra Kadisha and cemetery arrangement that is exquisite in the dignity extended to the deceased. There are always complaints, but my own experiences with out-of-town funerals has shown me how lucky we are.

We have a local butcher at United Kosher who has served the community with dedication for many years. Often we received complaints about price, and, when we checked in other cities, it turned out that United Kosher was quite competitive, to say the least. We have a Vaad HaKashruth headed by Dr. Baruch Diana who, unfortunately, is now leaving, and we wish him well, which has more than amply provided the community needs.

We have caterers who are part of the community and dedicated to it in a singular manner.

We have Rideau Bakery Rye (kosher, of course), which was voted the best in Canada.

We would be less than human if we did not seek a change-of-pace once in a while. But a change-of-pace is much different than a change. We are blessed and fortunate with what we have, an integrated community, a communal school, a Yeshiva High School, and great culinary resources.

I am not suggesting that we worship the status quo, only that we appreciate our very green grass.

The community is invited to attend. Admission is free. Refreshments will be served.

CJC concerned about monastery

The Canadian Jewish Congress has joined the World Jewish Congress in expressing concern over the proposed building of a Carmelite convent at the site of the former concentration camp at Oswiecim, Poland (Auschwitz).

In a letter to the Polish Ambassador to Canada, His Excellency Andrzej Kacala, Alan Rose, Executive Vice-President, Canadian Jewish Congress and Rabbi Jordan Pearson, Chairman of the International Affairs Committee of Congress, wrote: "Oswiecim is the site of a unique Jewish tragedy where countless of our brothers and sisters perished at the hands of the Nazis. Consequently, we are concerned that the Carmelite Order plans to erect a convent at Oswiecim. We believe at the very least, there must be an enduring Monument to the Jews who perished at this terrible place. We mourn for many innocent Christians murdered at Oswiecim, thus we would have no objection to an appropriate memorial to the Christian victims. However, for the site to be dignified solely with a Christian memorial, would be a posthumous injustice to the memory of our Jewish martyrs. We would be grateful if you will convey the contents of this letter to your government."

Always in Good Taste

Berry Berry Good

A sure sign of approaching good weather is the sight of glorious strawberries in the produce department of your favourite shopping establishment.

Strawberries are so named because they were originally brought to the markets strung on straws. In the 15th century, they began to be cultivated in Asia and Europe.

Strawberries are really false fruits, since the true fruits are really the tiny black seeds that are on the fleshy portion. Always select fully ripened berries because they will not ripen anymore once picked. Here are a few ways to enjoy them.

Quick Strawberry Mousse

1 qt. fresh strawberries 2 T. lemon juice
1-1 1/2 cups sugar 2 egg whites

Mash strawberries or put into blender. Mix berries with sugar and lemon juice. In a small bowl beat egg whites till stiff and fold into strawberry mixture. Place in freezer until almost frozen. Remove and beat till smooth. Put in mold and return to freezer until ready to serve.

Strawberry Bread

3 cups flour 3 eggs
1 t. cinnamon 2 cups sugar
1 t. baking soda 2 pints strawberries,
1 t. salt cut in half
1 1/4 cups oil 1 cup chopped walnuts

Combine flour, cinnamon, baking soda and salt in a bowl. Set aside. Combine oil, eggs and sugar in a large bowl and beat well. Gradually add the dry ingredients to the creamed mixture. Stir until moist. Stir in strawberries and nuts. Spoon mixture into 2 greased loaf pans. Bake at 350° for 1 hour.

Deep-Fried Strawberries

1 cup pancake mix 24 large berries
1/2 cup milk oil for frying
1/2 cup powdered sugar

Combine pancake mixture and milk and stir well. Dip strawberries in batter and fry in hot oil until brown. Sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving.

Strawberry Grand Marnier Tart

2/3 cup flour 1-2 T ice water
2 T sugar 3 pints fresh strawberries
2 T walnuts 1/4 cup Grand Marnier or 3 T butter, chilled and cut cognac into pieces 1/2 cup apricot jam

Place flour, sugar and nuts in a food processor. Mix. Gradually drop chilled butter through feed tube and process till mixture is like coarse meal. Add 1-2 T ice water and process till dough forms balls. Refrigerate 30 min. Roll dough on a 9-inch pie plate. Bake for 15-20 min. at 350°.

Place 1/2 the berries in the liqueur to soak, Purée the other half in the processor. Cook the puréed berries with the apricot jam in a non-aluminum pan till reduced by half. Cool. Pour the strawberry sauce in the pie crust. Arrange whole berries on top. Refrigerate 2 hours.

Compensation claims can now be submitted

The United Restitution Organization (URO), a non-profit agency created by the world's leading Jewish organizations, called upon surviving Jewish concentration camp inmates who worked for the German munition firm Dynamit-Nobel to submit new claims for compensation for their slave labor. A special fund of DM 5 million ($2 million) was recently made available by that company, which made the payment to the Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany. Only those who worked for Dynamit-Nobel will be eligible to share in the fund. URO handled thousands of similar claims against IG Farben, Krupp and other German firms which made payments during the 1960s.

Further information regarding the procedures to be followed is expected to be announced shortly by Compensation Treuhand of Frankfurt, a special trust created to administer the fund.

Canadian claims should be forwarded to either: URO Montreal, 279 Sherbrooke Street West, Montreal, Quebec, H2X 1Y2, (514) 844-2821 or URO Toronto, 4600 Bathurst Street #321, Willowdale, Ontario, M2R 3V2, (416) 630-2920.

The models displayed haute couture items by Tamara Jones, Gideon Oberson, and Nilly Tvig; ready-to-wear clothing by Adam and Eve, Biba, Gershon Bram, Gingette, Gottex, Maquette, Niba, Rikma, Edna Ross and Tadmor.

All in attendance were awed by the quality and design of the featured clothing. The talent present in the creation and construction of these Israeli designs should make us all proud.

Independence: "Hard To Win, Hard To Lose"

By Marlene E. Cherun, MSW
Senior Social Worker

The longer I practice as a social worker, the more clearly I realize that my colleagues and I are in the interdependence business. Regardless of the complexity of the varied problems faced by clients, if they could be reduced to one common denominator, it would be that of independence.

As parents, we instill the value of independence in our children as early as we can. We cherish every milestone — the first word, the first step, the first day at school, the first time the child ties his own shoes. Each of these accomplishments is a marker on the road to independence.

We measure our success as parents by the degree to which our children become financially independent, acquire homes of their own and provide their own transportation. This growing independence confers on an individual the power to make decisions about his life. This power we come to take for granted as our right, at least until circumstances force us to reconsider as we age.

We become more and more like ourselves. Those who have developed coping skills and strong independence continue to cope well. Non-copees more usually cope poorly and less independently in difficult circumstances. Thus we develop expectations of coping, or of coping less well, as the case may be.

The implications are clear for the aging, who must inevitably relinquish their independence, either physical or emotional. Those who have been extremely successful at achieving independence have more difficulty relinquishing it. Often copers suffer a loss of identity as they perceive they are losing their independence. The result of this identity crisis can be withdrawal and depression.

If family members understand these dynamics, they can be more supportive and less frightened by the changes in the aging person. It is vital to allow an aging person as much power, as much decision-making as possible. It is unfair for family, or professionals, to presume to have all the right answers for someone who has spent a lifetime of developing attitudes and taking the consequences of his decisions. If a person's self-identity and self-respect are to be preserved, his decision-making abilities must be kept intact wherever possible, for like his muscles, these abilities will also atrophy from lack of use.

If your family is facing a crisis around the issue of independence, the professionals at the Jewish Social Services Agency can help. Call us to discuss it at 238-6351.

South African Jews caught in 'cruel dilemma' between sides

The Jewish community of South Africa is caught today in a "cruel dilemma" between black and white extremists, a professor of political science said recently at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

On the one hand, said Prof. Shlomo Avineri, Herbert Samuel Professor of Political Science at the Hebrew University, the Jews — the most liberal segment of the white South African community — are identified by the black left with Israel, which the blacks view negatively as a supporter of the South African government. On the other hand, he said, the extreme nationalist white segment of the South African political spectrum feels that the most prominent spokesmen against the white-dominated regime are to be found among international Jewry.

Prof. Avineri said it is important to understand that, unlike other diaspora Jews who found themselves a small minority who had to adjust to established gentile societies, the Jews of South Africa were part of the very creation and development of the white South African community, and have always felt themselves part of and comfortable within that community.

Dr. Gideon Shimoni, himself South African-born and currently Shlomo Argov Lecturer in Israel-Diaspora Relations at the Hebrew University Institute of Contemporary Jewry, said that the Jews of South Africa are more concerned with the political and economic aspects of the future of South Africa than with the moral question of apartheid. He said the Jews there are comfortable with the relatively moderate "centrist" position of the present South African government.

Black leaders in South Africa have rejected feelers from Jewish leaders for dialogue, Shimoni commented, with the black leaders having adopted classic anti-Semitic myths as well as an anti-Israel stance. Dr. Shimoni added that as far as increased aliyah to Israel from South Africa is concerned, the best chance lay in appealing to young South African Jews on an ideological basis.

Prof. Michael Wade, also South African-born and a lecturer at the Hebrew University in African and Asian studies and in English, said that anti-Jewish sentiment among blacks in South Africa can be attributed to the fact that Jewish community is an identifiable, small and relatively weak element within the overall white community. Many Jews are employers of blacks, and this also influences how blacks view them within the establishment, said Wade.

Unswerving dedication to Jewish values

Baruch Diena: a lifetime steeped in tradition

By David Ingre

Here in the diaspora, we count the omer from the second sefer. Thus, it was on the third day of the count that I went to meet Dr. Baruch Diena.

The strains of Pesach vibrated in the background of the deceptively small house which he and his wife Sara share just off the north end of Kirkwood Avenue. We sat down in the dining room, hagadol stacked in a corner. Packages beside a wall were explained as items brought for the chag by his sons and daughter and their families, visiting from Toronto. From the kitchen behind the door facing my chair echoed the sounds of lively family discussions, punctuated by the noises of play from some of the eight grandchildren they find a blessing.

"You understand," Baruch informed me, "things won't be in order until after the holidays. There are a lot of people in the house at the moment."

Baruch is not a common name in Canada. As a matter of fact, it was not recognized for official documents in his native Italy, either: "Benito" is inscribed on his passport. When he speaks, his sentences carry a staccato rhythm, a curious, syncopated brio which suggest concentration and urgency. Later, musing on my reaction, I wonder whether the musical allusion derives from an unconscious "Italian connection". No, I conclude; the arpeggios are there, supporting the accent and intonation as though mirroring a mind which cannot easily slow down to the speed of the tongue.

Born in Rhodes

He was born in Rhodes, a city which to most of us evokes only a schoolbook image of the mighty Colossus, wonder of the ancient world. But in 1926, the city was part of Italy, and harboured several thousand Jews who had lived there for generations. The Dienas left two years later, when Baruch's father, Giorgio, accepted an appointment as Chasan and Secretary to the Rabbinical Office in the northern Italian industrial city of Milan.

"It's ironic," my host reminisces: "the Jews who remained in Rhodes were killed by the Nazis in 1944."

Always attuned to travel, Baruch moved back and forth between Milan and Rome during the years of Europe's greatest darkness. The Italian capital's Rabbinical College became a kind of greenhouse, sheltering the Diena family's continuing tradition of Jewish scholarship. (Decades later, all three of Baruch and Sara's children would attend religious schools, from Hillel Academy in Ottawa to yeshivot in Toronto.)

He refers to the recent visit of the Pope to Rome's main synagogue. "That's where we used to meet," he recounts, weaving childhood and middle age, desperation and hope. "The yeshiva students met in rooms underneath it."

How was it possible for him to continue during the War, I query? "You see," he informs me, "the Rabbinical colleges tended to operate until 1943. Yes, there was anti-semitism:

from the Church, which never let you forget it; but not really from the people."

Weren't there laws passed by the Fascists against the Jews? "Of course," he goes on, conjuring from my memory the Spanish professor who conducted some of my graduate school seminars — pleased to explain but not wanting to depart from the theme of the class.

"But you have to remember... Italy had traditions of separate states until Garibaldi in the middle of the nineteenth century. That made a big difference. Anti-semitic laws were passed — usually, the people found ways to outwit them. Often people paid a bit here and there. They said Jews can't go to the army — so what? They said Jews must clean the streets — nobody really paid attention. They said Jews can't go to the university — Jewish grade schools were expanded to include second year university programs."

It occurs to me that I am, in a way, talking with a man whose personal history embodies the compromising pragmatism which enabled European Jewry to survive the centuries. From 1936 until the end of Italy's alliance with Germany, Giorgio Diena strived to save other Jews, eventually winning life for many who would otherwise have been consumed. But after the armistice of 1943, Baruch moved with his father to Switzerland. His mother, Ida and his younger brother, Joel — ill with measles, endured a two-year separation enforced by suddenly closed frontiers.

In Montreux, Baruch studied at the yeshiva, adding French to his fluent Italian and Hebrew. Finally, in 1945, he returned to Milan, and then on to Parma — where his yeshiva certificate gained him the position of

"Chief of Religious Affairs."

In Parma, he completed a doctorate in veterinary medicine. Wasn't this anomalous, I ask.

"No," he points out, his words still trilling behind his logic. "I had it in the blood to study Jewish law; the tradition came from my father. But in Italy, students of religion had to be educated in something else, too. And I was always interested in schechitah, in related animal issues. I was planning to make aliyah, and I knew they needed vets in Israel, though I never really intended to practise. I wanted to study veterinary medicine as a vehicle for lab study, for Jewish study, for many other things."

Married Sara Costi

Through a Jewish social group, Baruch had met Sara Costi in Milan. She was also from a religious family, her father a well known and well respected chasan in Milan. After a few years, they decided to marry, but in Parma, in the midst of "his congregation".

"Parma was a very nice life," Baruch narrates with a nostalgic smile. "I worked in the synagogue every day; I went to the university. Beautiful days!"

The Dienas came to Montreal in 1951, an intended three-month sojourn before making aliyah. But there, friends "introduced him around", as he recalls it.

Appending English to his collection of languages, he completes a Masters in 1954 and a Ph.D. in 1956 in Bacteriology at McGill University. (How did he manage to outwit the "Jewish quota" still so strongly in effect, I wonder. My question is overtaken as the many lines of his life begin to converge on this Passover day in Ottawa.) To complement his secular pursuits, he becomes the leader of the growing congregation of Sefardim, playing a leading role in building the (now "old") Young Israel Sefardic Chapel.

Didn't he want to work in the community there, too, I smile? His reply ignores my gentle irony. "Yes, but you see, I did Ph.D. work from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; from 5:00 to 8:00, I taught Hebrew; from 8:30 on, I went to the Merkaz Hatorah Yeshiva to learn Jewish law with Rabbi Hirschprung. So, you don't really have much time to get involved in community affairs."

From amongst the job offers attracted by his doctorates, he accepts a position with the Federal Government in Ottawa — "because it's close". He starts working here the very day his second son, Manny, is born in Montreal.

Soon, the family is reunited in a house he has found on Holland Street. They join — and Baruch eventually becomes president of — the now disappeared B'nai Jacob synagogue. Orthodox, they walk to services on shabbat — four miles each way.

"In winter, it was not too bad," he chuckles. "In summer, we got dry."

Later, installed in the house I now visit, they take part in the birth of the Young Israel Congregation, of which he also becomes president, serving until less than two years ago. Drawing a mental map of the Carling-Kirkwood area, I decide it is still a fair walk — summer and winter.

Remembers the unity

What was the community like thirty years ago? It was smaller, naturally. But I remember the unity — the Rabbi worked closely together, everyone did. And how did he come to be an essential link in the chain of that community? As always, he served, long and joyfully.

As always, he worked to spread "traditional Judaism" — the phrase recurs often, emphatically, as we talk. He laboured to educate the young, to participate in the administration of the community. For several years, Baruch was a trustee and an officer of the Vaad; for two of them, he held the responsibility of Vice-President.

An inveterate educator, Baruch was soon immersed in the field in Ottawa. "I was teaching Hebrew at Hillel Academy. Rabbi Weber came to me and said, 'You know, I'd like you to be part of the Talmud Torah Board.' I did it. But, as a member of the Board you cannot teach. It would be a conflict of interest."

He remembers two of the people who supervised him, who inspired him — Dr. Mirsky and later Dr. Shapiro.

"Then, I was asked to be the President of the Board. I did that for three years. I think I was still President when my daughter, Tamar, graduated."

Another facet of the Judaism he loves shines through yet another involvement. "Kashrut has been my life all the time," he stresses. "My background in veterinary science, in bacteriology, in immunology — they naturally led me to it. These things aren't planned. You start working...and you do what you do."

Chairs Vaad Hakashruth

In 1970, he becomes Chairman of the Vaad Hakashruth, an office he still holds. "It's a large organization," he explains. "We give the hechsher — the certificate of kashrut."

"There's a bakery to look after — someone has to be there at 3:00 or 4:00 in the morning when the bread is being made: there's a fish store; there's a butcher shop; all the synagogues — except the Reform, of course; Hillel Lodge; the Jewish Community Centre; the Jewish Community Campus; Hillel Academy; the Embassy West — we have a place downstairs which can be made kosher on request; and there's Camp B'nai B'rith, and the two Day Camps. The Vaad Hakashruth has to meet every month. There is the lay group and the rabbis' group. We don't have enough people!"

Palpable emotion

Palpable emotion rises from his words. Here, I sense, lies one of the cornerstones of his dedication. Suddenly, I become aware of an odd idiosyncrasy, a lack of concert between the verbal and the physical. The intensity which often suffuses his words has no counterpart in gesture. Despite his dual heritage — Jewish and Italian — this is a man who does not talk with his hands.

What motivates him? What does he most want me to say about him? Baruch doesn't need to reflect on his answer.

"The unity of the Jewish Community is a very precious entity. We are exposed to attack from many different sources. But people here are interested. They know the importance of religion in maintaining the unity. You remember Hy Hochberg? He and I didn't always share the same ideas. But we did believe this."

"I am interested in traditional Judaism. I would like very much to see this permeate through the whole Jewish Community: shabbat, kashrut, religious teaching in the schools, talks on Jewish life at the Centre and the Campus and in the synagogues, perhaps a permanent mashgiach in Ottawa."

No secular concerns

Is he concerned about an apparent growth in secularism, in alienation? "No," he counters. "I happen to think that more and more Jews are becoming traditional...For example, even from the point of view of kashrut...the number of products in Steinbergs, in the stores, which are kosher now, is unbelievable. Soap, yogurt, everything. People want that. The number of people buying kosher fish, kosher meat, kosher bread. They know it's important. There are more and more of them."

"I've always believed that religion is the fabric of Jewish life. It's what keeps the Jews together."

His certainty, his conviction, impress me. They denote the drive which has always impelled him. Perhaps I am slightly envious of the security and stability they must bring.

There is, of course, another side to Baruch Diena, a professional side, the "something else" that you have to have, even in Canada. He is now nearing the conclusion of a highly-successful career with the Department of National Health and Welfare.

"I am in charge," he begins — and then corrects himself, revealing the new perspective he is adopting. "I was in charge of research in bacteriology, in immunology. I have about a hundred and fifty publications."

Much travelling

"Yes," he responds to my next question, "I had to travel a lot. Meetings and so on, all over Canada and the United States." Did Sara ever accompany him? "Oh, of course. All the time. We were in Philadelphia not long ago, a conference, so we took a hotel near a place where we could get kosher food; you can almost always find one now."

I mention having seen him years ago at a Jewish Immigrant Aid Services meeting. Immediately, he gives credit to his wife.

"She has always believed in helping other people. For example, she has worked with Emunah Mizrahi for years. She worked with them for a long time in Ottawa, and now she's the Immediate Past President of the National Organization. She also became involved with Russian Jews, welcoming them, helping them to settle here. So, she was working with J.I.A.S. I was there because of her."

Strong family unity

This automatic assumption of family unity — another basic element in the crucible of Baruch's Judaism — includes his children.

A number of years ago, he tells me as if everyone thinks of doing the same, he bought a laboratory for them in Toronto — "blood, chemical analysis, just a testing laboratory". Run by his sons, Danny and Manny, its success corroborates the inner confidence which marks these orthodox individuals.

And it will soon prove the setting for an unusual reversal. Towards the end of this summer, Baruch retires from the Federal Public Service. When he and Sara move to Toronto, he will take up a position in his sons' laboratory. Somehow, it seems fitting that the father should go into the family business.

After all, Baruch Diena, who proudly shows me the certificate given in 1969 by the Jews of Milan to his father Giorgio for forty years of service, who shows me in his cupped hands a silver holder kept from his birthplace, who goes across to the living room to point out a drawing of the Livorno synagogue, hinting at a story I would one day like to hear...he is a man whose business has always been his family — the Jewish people.

WJC releases 95 page exposé

Waldheim's 'hidden years' detailed in report

NEW YORK, (JTA) — The World Jewish Congress has released a 95-page report detailing its findings on what the organization calls the "hidden years" of Kurt Waldheim, the former United Nations Secretary General and front runner in Sunday's Austrian Presidential run-off election.

The report details "one of the most elaborate deceptions of our time" and includes the recently-released secret UN file on Waldheim. According to that file, the UN War Crimes Commission in 1948 said Waldheim should stand trial for "murder" and "putting hostages to death."

The WJC has transmitted a copy of the report to the U.S. Justice Department and it again called on Attorney General Edwin Meese to implement the recommendation of his Department's Office of Special Investigations which concluded that American law requires that Waldheim be barred from entering the United States.

The WJC released its report in conjunction with a major address in London by the organization's president, Edgar Bronfman, who described Waldheim as an "amoral and unrepentant liar" whose election as President of Austria "would be an act of symbolic amnesty for the Holocaust."

Annotated report
The annotated WJC report elaborates on what has begun to emerge about Waldheim:
•A section in "Kurt Waldheim's own words" details how "he has lied about his past" and continues to do so.

•Documents from Waldheim's personnel file show he belonged to three Nazi organizations, including Hitler's "Brownshirts".
•A medal awarded to Waldheim was one of only three received for merit "under enemy fire" in the brutal anti-partisan campaign known as the Kozara Massacres in Yugoslavia during 1942.

•Waldheim, who long claimed an anti-Nazi background, wrote his dissertation on a pan-German ideologist. In his dissertation he wrote of the "magnificent collaboration of all the peoples of Europe under the leadership of the Reich."

•Waldheim is pinpointed in a series of SS photographs at a strategy session for "Operation Black" — a campaign involving a brutal series of atrocities by Axis forces against Yugoslav villages in 1943.

•On August 8, 1943, Waldheim entered in the war diary Hitler's criminal order on the shootings of partisans after capture.

•Captured Nazi war documents show Waldheim's briefing another officer about arrangements for the forcible transport of tens of thousands of Italian soldiers from Greece to German slave labor camps.

•As a senior intelligence officer, Waldheim's duties were listed as including "prisoner interrogation" and "special tasks" — the latter, a euphemism in Nazi reports which generally described secret measures related to mass terror, torture or executions.

•Waldheim's oft-repeated claims of being a low-level soldier are shattered by documents showing he personally gave briefings to the chief of the general staff of the high command of Army Group E.

•Nazi war documents show the presence of Waldheim at general staff meetings during which the "effective" use of hostages and the utilization of civilian slave labor were discussed.

The WJC has to date located 19 intelligence reports signed by Waldheim in which he relayed information extracted from prisoners.

•In 1944, in both Greece and Yugoslavia, intelligence reports signed by Waldheim which pinpoint centers of anti-Nazi activity, were followed by reprisal measures by the German army which carried out murderous atrocities against civilians.

•A Waldheim report was actually used at Nuremberg as evidence of war crimes in Greece.

•It was Waldheim's very intelligence unit that detailed the number of Jews in Corfu prior to their subsequent deportation to Auschwitz in 1944.

Investigations summarized
The report also summarizes governmental investigations to date on Waldheim. It finds:

•In 1947, Yugoslavia branded Waldheim a war criminal and said his extradition was mandatory in order that he stand trial as a murderer.

•The U.N. war crimes commission in 1948 said there was "sufficient evidence to justify prosecution" of Waldheim on charges of "murder" and "putting hostages to death."

The U.S. army, on the basis of the U.N. Commission's findings placed Waldheim on its 1948 "wanted list" which listed him as wanted for "murder."

The current investigation by the U.S. Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations concluded that Waldheim should be barred from entering the United States. Under American law, "Nazi-persecutors" are prohibited entry into the U.S.

Israel's Justice Minister said his country's continuing investigation had already shown "there is a basis for putting Kurt Waldheim on trial."

•In Austria, the head of the State police between 1945 and 1947, Heinrich Duermayer, confirmed that his office had not investigated Waldheim in 1945 when he began his service in the Foreign Ministry. On April 22 of this year, Austria's President sought to exonerate Waldheim of war crimes charges in a television address to the nation. He acknowledges Waldheim must have known about atrocities.

Although Waldheim has claimed the superpowers had checked into his background and cleared him, on April 9 a Soviet spokesman said "no attempt was made to investigate Mr. Waldheim."

In releasing the report, the WJC stressed it is of an interim nature. "We are presently looking through several hundred pages of more documents which will be released as we complete our analysis of them," the WJC noted.

Opinion

Why Such Poor Attendance at This Year's Yom Hashoa Memorial Observance?

By Elly Bollegraaf

On Sunday, May 4, 1986, the Holocaust observance was held, as always, at the Jewish Community cemetery on the lawn in front of the Holocaust Memorial. It was a cold day, yet quite tolerable if one dressed warmly. The organizers of the event had, as usual, done an excellent job. An ample number of chairs were set out, the program was conducted with decorum, and several speakers provided brief but highly meaningful talks. One was reminded once again of the strength and leadership qualities of various members of our Jewish community. The speakers reiterated the need for continued attendance at this annual gathering and observance and to remember always the unspeakable acts of the Holocaust, which had, senselessly, almost annihilated the entire Jewish people. In contrast to the adult speakers, the children from the various Ottawa Jewish schools provided us with their beautiful voices both in song as well as in the recitation of poems and stories.

Those people who attended the memorial observance privately shared their bottled up agony and anger. Some, not having been personally involved in the Holocaust, came out of respect as well as the need to remember. While the unbelievable and senseless atrocities were carried out over 40 years ago, they ought never to be forgotten. As our Israeli ambassador, Eliashiv Ben-Horin, said, "they should be remembered for six million years!" Rabbi Reuven Bulka reinforced this by reminding us that there are Nazis and anti-semites residing in different parts of the world today (such as Louis Farrakhan in the U.S.A.) who would without hesitation continue where Hitler left off, if given a chance. While we commemorate the incredible losses of our past, we must also be courageous and face our adversaries, for as Ambassador Ben-Horin reminded us, "the world does not respect the timid and the shy".

The morning's events left me very sad as usual, yet, it was a necessity for me to attend. The fact that I am both a child survivor and the child of a survivor made my attendance at the service very necessary. Yet, the message conveyed was one for all Jews, whether they experienced the Holocaust personally or not. The attendance at this year's memorial observance was shockingly low! I realize that some people may have had other commitments, and that there were conflicting events scheduled at some of the synagogues (which should not have been), making it impossible for people to attend. Yet, to my mind it is inconceivable that attendance at the Yom Hashoa Memorial Observance is considered of lesser importance than any of the other scheduled events (e.g. brunches, etc.) In view of the fact that Holocaust exhibits are being assembled, and attempts are being made to teach the Holocaust to non-Jewish as well as Jewish school children, should we cease observing communally the Annual Memorial Observance? This seems counter-productive. I hope that next year the scheduling of social events will not contain conflicts with this very necessary event.

As I mulled over thoughts of the memorial observance, I mentioned to a non-Jewish colleague at work the following morning, that I felt the attendance was getting poorer each year. She replied "I know exactly what you mean, hardly anyone attends the Armistice memorial any longer. People have already forgotten the war". Her response left me dismayed, for I realized that this line of thought may be what is keeping away our Jews from the annual Yom Hashoa Memorial. But surely these two events (Armistice and Holocaust) are not the same! The Jews of Europe were not at war. They did not choose to go to war. They were unarmed unsuspecting victims of wholesale slaughter, intended by the Nazis to be globally annihilated. It is this distinction which seems to be forgotten by many already. What type of publicity and education is necessary to raise the consciousness of our Jewish people and others, to this awareness?

Giving aid in Chernobyl

An Israeli-born Weizmann Institute of Science specialist in bone marrow transplants has been in Russia aiding patients suffering marrow damage from radiation poisoning as a result of the Soviet nuclear plant accident at Chernobyl.

The Israeli expert, Dr. Yair Reisner, has been affiliated with the Weizmann Institute in Rehovot since 1961, and is currently working at New York's Sloan-Kettering Cancer Centre. Two other experts, Drs. Paul Terasaki and Richard Gale, are also in Russia to aid the patients.

Reisner's revolutionary method of bone marrow purification has been used in more than 160 marrow transplants. The success rate has been 70% in children with leukemia and 60% in children with genetic defects that deprive them of immune defenses.

While Terasaki specializes in getting the closest possible match between the patient's body and the transplanted marrow, Reisner's method cleanses the marrow of cells that causes the rejection.

JUST-4-U

By Jeffrey D. Fishbain,
President, J.S.U.-Hillel
at Carleton University

The weather may have been gloomy outside, but it did not dampen the spirits of about 45 people who came to nosh on hot dogs and smoked meat at J.S.U.'s first program for the summer, the "Jump Into June Barbecue Bonanza."

Although activities were somewhat curbed due to the inclement nature of the sky, it was encouraging to see students from out-of-town universities, those just visiting or working in Ottawa for the summer, and of course, the J.S.U. regulars kibbitzing, listening to music, getting acquainted or re-acquainted or generally having a good time!

Many thanks to Esther Guiot and her sister Rebecca for being such cordial hosts of the event. Thanks also to Geoff Fages, the Vice-President at Carleton U. for assisting at the grill and for generally being a good "right hand". Before I forget, thanks must also go to Mitch Zimman and family for the loan of the barbecue (something a good barbecue party should never be without!). Finally, thanks to all who came out and made the event such a success!!

We plan to keep J.S.U. going strong throughout the summer, so if you are interested in learning more about us and our programs, have any suggestions or comments, feel free to call our director, Hilary Ingre, in the office at 232-7306, myself at home 731-0121 or at work 236-9611, or Rose-Anne Freedman, vice-president at Ottawa U. at 594-2825. Or, better yet, come and contribute to one of our executive/core group meetings. With your help J.S.U. can be better than ever!!!

P.S. Have any artistic talent? If you have a design for a new J.S.U.-Hillel T-shirt/sweatshirt, why not call Hilary.

P.P.S. Don't forget our huge opening bash coming on Saturday, September 13, at the Chateau Laurier — it promises to be an evening to remember!

The Jewish Community Centre of Ottawa is a Beneficiary Agency of the United Jewish Appeal

A letter to the community from the JCC Day Camp Director

Shalom Chevarim:

Greetings — I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself and outline my objectives for this summer as the Jewish Community Centre Day Camp Director.

Firstly, I must state how honoured and excited I am on having been chosen as the 1986 Director for the J.C.C. Summer Day Camp Program. I look forward to filling this position with dedication, enthusiasm and enough chutzpah to get the job done.

I am 28 years old and am presently entering my fourth year of an honours B.Sc. program in Computer Science at the University of Ottawa. I am a late starter at university, having taken "time off" between high school and university to introduce myself to the business world, an experience which has given me valuable knowledge regarding staff, time, and money management.

I feel a strong commitment to the Ottawa Jewish community. I am a member of Machzikei Hadas Synagogue. I am also an executive member of the Jewish Student's Union-Hillel, and have been involved in the planning and execution of many of its religious, political and social activities. I am committed to helping our local advocacy groups whenever I am able and am a member myself of the Ottawa Chapter for Ethiopian Jewry.

Over the past two years I have had the most fortunate opportunity to be involved with the Israel Program Centre in both activity planning and organization of the I.P.C. and to take part in the Returnees Program (Young Kibbutz Movement).

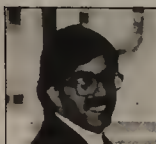

I have also had much experience working with Jewish children. For two years, I taught at the Temple Israel Sunday School and enjoyed the experience of encouraging kids to respond to their rich Jewish heritage. I have also had many opportunities to program for and interact with young people. These experiences will, I feel, enable me to bring new direction and energy to the J.C.C.'s summer camp program, and will help me relate to and draw out the best from our capable camp staff.

My intention is to see that the camp runs smoothly and efficiently. My most important goal, however, is to promote a warm, relaxed and secure atmosphere, which will encourage all the campers to participate fully in the very fine and varied programs, including the many specialty activities. My hope is that these youngsters will leave the J.C.C. Summer Day Camp with a feeling of satisfaction and personal accomplishment, with a little more awareness of their Jewish heritage, and most of all, with memories of good fun and great times.

I invite all the young members of our community to come join us and be part of this unique, enjoyable summer experience. I sincerely hope we will see you at J.C.C. Summer Camp.

L'hitraot,
Jonathan Abrams.

The Crossover Factor

Sports buffs will likely have noted the recent U.P.I. story on Nancy Lieberman who became the first woman to play basketball in a professional men's league in the U.S. Lieberman who was an all-American at Old Dominion (the school not the store!) played for the U.S. Olympic team in 1984 and has dominated the sport for the past ten years. Lieberman scored ten points in her first game and was not out of place with the male hoopsters.

What about here in town? My money says that a young woman named Sharon Diener has everything it takes to be a pitcher in the men's softball league. SIR — on location — took the opportunity to catch a few of the sidewinder's best offerings and her accuracy and consistency are exceptional. Sharon has a great attitude and having grown up with three competitive brothers is able to take the ribbing that goes along with being an athletic pioneer.

We had to coax Sharon to throw batting practice for our team several weeks ago and even some cranky veterans had to admit that she was constantly "around the plate".

This week's tip of the SIR cap is to Sharon Diener.

Player of the Month

Move over Reggie Jackson! Neil Brotman of Howard Krebs' A-division leading Slippery's softball team cracked 5 home runs in the first six games of the season to easily garner the "player of the month" award for May. If there was a "family of the month" award, serious consideration would have to be given to Dr. Fred Ross and sons David and Dean who have been powerful offensive forces on three different A-Division squads. You can throw in "uncle" Keith Ross who slimmed down about thirty pounds and is smashing the ball around reminiscent of the glory days when three of his teams won consecutive championships behind the "sneaky smart" pitching of bureaucrat-turned-lobbyist, George Fleischmann.

The Thin Men

Has anyone seen Phil Gennis? I mean what used to be Phil Gennis. Phil is another one of the "formerly fat, now finally fit" group who have managed to burn off the surplus poundage. Phil will probably use the money that he's saved on chocolate croissants and kiwi and pineapple cheesecake (eat your heart out Alyce Baker!) to buy himself a brand new wardrobe.

Another member of the club — auto magnate Lou Eisenberg — looks like he's "downsized" from a Cadillac to a Chevette. With these two guys pushing themselves away from the table, a couple of local restaurateurs are probably going to be worrying about where their own next meals may be coming from.

Sportsphobia

The latest sportsphobe to daringly come forward to admit to SIR that "I don't do any sports so I suppose there is no way that I'll ever get into your column" is Elaine Rabin, Executive Director of Jewish Social Services. Wrong, Elaine! If you take the May 23rd edition of the Bulletin, you'll find your picture on the backside of this column. I hope that that's close enough for you. That's SIR for now. See you in July!

Video-Discussion Night. Film: Cocoon Guest Speaker: Dr. Marie France Rivard, on Creative Aging
 Sunday, July 6, 7:00 p.m.

Jewish Community Centre, Assembly Hall

The Video-Discussion Club has come up with a fascinating program this month, which, it believes, will be of interest to many people in all sectors of our community. It will be presenting the film Cocoon, a recent hit, which combines unlikely elements — the realities of aging in a retirement community and a science fiction version of the fountain of youth — into a delightfully entertaining comedy. The film presents some memorable movie moments by old-timers such as Hume Cronin and Don Ameche; it also introduces some bright new faces such as Tanya Welch (daughter of Raquel) and Sean Flynn (son of Errol). The film will be followed by a discussion on Creative Aging, lead by Dr. Marie France Rivard, Assistant Professor of Psychiatry at the University of Ottawa and Director of Psycho-Geriatric Services at the Royal Ottawa Hospital.

This evening will be co-sponsored by the Adults for Lively Leisure Club and will take place at the J.C.C. to accommodate the large crowd expected. As usual, the film will be presented on a large screen and in stereo, and refreshments will be part of the evening's nominal admission fee of $2.00. Everyone in the community is warmly invited to attend.

Cocktail Get-2-Gethers, Summer Schedule

Please Note New Day, New Time, New Location

Brandy's (Patio), 126 York, 8:30 p.m.

Thursdays, July 3 and 17, August 7 and 21

For the summer, we've decided to move cocktail nights to Thursdays, thus avoiding a conflict for the Wednesday night baseball crowd. Thursdays have more of a "weekend" feel anyhow. We'll meet on Brandy's Patio (familiar turf to many) on the first and third Thursday of the month. Tell all your friends and acquaintances to drop by. The dress code is informal and the mood is relaxed and friendly.

Bowling Bonus

Kent Bowling Lanes

270 Catherine St. (near Kent St. and the Queensway)
 July 13, 7:00 p.m.

Have you had it with sunburns, mosquitos, hayfever and heat waves? Take a break from the great outdoors and spend a relaxed evening enjoying that great indoor sport, bowling. Our bowling season is officially over but we have a bonus evening for you. We guarantee a friendly crowd, a relaxed evening of exercise, and positively no mosquitos or blackflies. Leave your shades and suntan lotion at home and come join us. We get together for coffee and conversation after bowling; meet us at 8:30 at the bowling alley if you want to join us then.

Caribbean Night

Caribbean Hideaway, 2660 Southvale Cr.

Saturday, July 19, 10:00 p.m.

Move to the sound of a different beat. Hidden away in the heart of suburbia, there's a night spot where the beat is hot and the drums are sure to get your feet twitching. Enjoy a special evening with a Caribbean flavour. Dance the night away at the Caribbean Hideaway to calypso, reggae, rumba and disco. Or just come out to observe and absorb the colourful scene. To register, and for more information call Chaya Prince at 733-3540 (evenings) by July 14.

Bicycle/Picnic Outing

Vincent Massey Park, Section K

Sunday, July 20, 12:00 for biking, 1:00 for picnic

After dancing the night away, relax in the summer sun at our bicycle-cum-picnic outing. We're planning a laid-back, suit-yourself afternoon in the sun. Bring your own lunch and any equipment you consider essential picnic paraphernalia — frisbees, suntan lotion, badminton racquets, etc. Children are very welcome also. Bicyclers can meet at the outdoor parking lot of the Conference Centre (Colonel By Drive opposite Westin Hotel) at 12:00 and will bike to the picnic at Vincent Massey Park. Picnickers will meet at 1:00 in section K of Vincent Massey Park. Come out and bring your kids, friends, extended family, etc. It's a big park. For more information contact Lorne Cutler at 237-2988 or Barry Davis at 728-9087.

No slim pickins from these slim chickens

JERUSALEM: Low-fat chickens that taste as good as plump ones have been developed by scientists at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Researchers at the University's Faculty of Agriculture, working in cooperation with Israel's Agricultural Research Organization, have succeeded in breeding two genetically distinct lines of chickens — one very thin and one very fat.

At marketing age, the chickens from the thin line have only a quarter to a third of the fatty tissue that the chickens from the fat group have, but their meat is just as tasty because the amount of fat within the meaty tissue has not changed. Rather, the separate layer of abdominal fat has been reduced, as a result of genetic selection of chickens with little abdominal fat.

"In fatty chickens the fat is mostly wasted," said Professor Israel Nir of the University's Department of Animal Sciences. "It does not reach the customer because it is generally eliminated in the slaughterhouse or in processing. Even the fat which is not removed beforehand is generally thrown away by customers, because they have heard that animal fats are unhealthy, and they no longer use chicken fat in cooking," he said.

When the thinner chickens are produced commercially they will cost less to grow because they can utilize their feed more efficiently. Fat is expensive to produce: four times as much feed is needed to produce one gram of fatty tissue as is needed to produce one gram of meat. Customers will therefore pay less for the lean chickens, and Israel will need to import less chicken feed.

Professor Nir noted that the thinner chickens were also much healthier. The thin chickens laid more eggs than the fat ones, and their natural death rate was considerably lower.

In addition, the eggs from the thin chickens were much more fertile — 20 per cent more chicks hatch from the slim chickens' than from the fat chickens'. These effects combined to give 42 per cent more progeny in the thin line. Thus, said Nir, the thin chickens are better than the fat chickens in every respect.

Witnesses are being sought

The U.S. Department of Justice has requested the assistance of the World Jewish Congress in locating witnesses to Nazi crimes committed between 1942 and 1944 at the Maidanek death camp in Lublin, Poland.

The Department's Office of Special Investigations (OSI) is in the process of gathering evidence in connection with its investigations of suspected Nazi war criminals residing in the United States.

OSI is especially interested in contacting survivors who were sent to work as slave laborers outside the camp, particularly those who were forced to dig peat under the supervision of perimeter guards.

Survivors, or those who might be of assistance in locating survivors from these camps, may communicate in any language they choose and are asked to contact: Ms. Bessy Pupko, World Jewish Congress, One Park Avenue, New York, New York 10016, (212) 679-0600.
